What's New In Rebel?

A simple and distraction-free notes-to-do/todo-list manager that allows you to add font/style/size/style styles, URL links, pictures, videos, and more Keep a history of your notes, so you can quickly find the exact note you're looking for later Reorder your notes, create lists, and make text bold and italic, link to websites, and more Follow this guide to make Rebel your new favourite app: Android Market: Reviews by LesleyTruesdaleonIOS Great to do list app. Fails consistently and no updates from developer. DO NOT USE! by SpitefulonIOS Good but has a bug that allows notes to be seen on other users device. by DavidonIOS Having issues with the Rebel app. I like the way its uses the dark mode in the app which I don't have on the iPhone. However, it has a design flaw that doesn't allow you to add the number 1 to the top of the list and yet the screen shot under "UI/UX" shows the number 1 at the bottom. In fact the only way to make the list appear in order of number is to put the number 1 at the end. Otherwise the list scrolls through multiple pages until you hit the bottom. I tried out the companion app on the iPad and that works as designed. by Lici ToodonIOS I don't know why I rated this so low but this app bugs me every time I use it. After the first time you sign in with your email and it is constant error after error. I don't have this issue with my regular apps. What is the point of this app if it won't work. Instead of fixing it they should just offer the app for free and for a cheaper price you could use your phone as a note taking device. by RondononIOS Nice app, but it has issues. Notes are not very intuitive. If you want to add a new note, you click the note folder icon and after waiting for this to load, you click the add icon to add a new note. If you leave off the comma, you should get an option to either
